New Grand Voice Takes the Helm of the High Church

By Hierophant Andelo Kopač
Endorsed by The Council of Exarchs

After several years of loyal service, Former Grand Voice of the High Church of Messiah-as-Emperox, Exarch Tatiana Laurent, has decided to step away from her position, naming popular High Priest Callixtus Pius as her successor and granting him the additional title of 'Exarch.'

As the tides of war continue to wash upon the shores of Acheron Rho, the former Grand Voice cited the recent atrocities of Diomikato as one of the reasons for stepping aside from the position, which has traditionally been seen as one whole-life-term appointment.

The former Grand Voice has said that she has moved into a more operational role, one where she can 'do exactly what is needed to make the world a better place,' whilst still intimating that she would happily be a more 'informal mouthpiece' for the Church when needed.

New Grand Voice, Exarch Callixtus Pius, takes up the role as someone well versed in the diplomacies of the sector. His appointment was met by the cheers of his colleagues, with Exarch Tatiana Laurent receiving a standing ovation that lasted several minutes for her commitment and leadership.

In his opening address to the sector, the new Grand Voice said:

"I have much Gratitude for the work Exarch Tatiana did for the sector. She has taught me many lessons - lessons which I will seek to remember as it becomes my responsibility to speak for the Council. The sector is in turmoil. It is now more important than ever before that all listen to the Voice of God."
