The High Church of Messiah-as-Emperor took tragedy on Teuthem and turned it on its head yesterday as it announced that a range of costs - such as funerals and mechanical repair - incurred by the Deathless Conflict Solutions would be covered by way of reparation by the inaugural actions of the Ninth Virtue Charitable Trust.

“We get requests for financial support all year round,” said Exarch Tatiana the Grand Voice. “Our locally based High Church members do their utmost to support their communities on a daily basis, but when it comes to bigger scale projects that may be more complex, or immediate crises such as the events on Teuthem, we wanted to be able to contribute where appropriate.”

THE NINTH VIRTUE CHARITABLE TRUST “The NVCT has been in the pipeline for a long time,” advised Lector Cecilia Assiminek, one of several High Church members temporarily seconded away from their usual duties to be part of the Trust Development Team. “We were just putting the finishing touches to it when news from Teuthem reached us. When we heard what The Deathless had done in the name of the Empire, we knew we had to help, and we knew where that financial aid would come from.”

Whilst there is the potential for charitable acts such as this to occur through the NVCT, the High Church is keen to raise awareness that the majority of funding available is for longer term ventures. Any organisation or House can apply, as long as they can show that the money will be used in accordance with the vision of the charity.

“‘One Faith, One Humanity, One Empire’ is the easiest way to remember it,” Assiminek continued. “If the project you wish to pursue falls in line with at least one of the Ten Virtues, is for the good of humanity and for the good of the Empire, then it is worth getting in touch with us.”

In addition, there is an emphasis on collaborative working embedded within the foundations of the Ninth Virtue Charitable Trust.

“We want to build bridges,” said Exarch Tatiana. “Long term, long lasting relationships that will bring humanity closer together; the NVCT is simply a starting point, a way for us to show our dedication to the continued unity of Acheron Rho.”
